

Experts by Experience?

Changing how we do health and social care.

A talk by Tom Shakespeare at Adderbury Quaker Meeting House, Sunday 17th June at 3 p.m.

Banbury and Evesham Quakers invite you to the Adderbury Gathering, our annual public talk, at the Adderbury Quaker Meeting House.

Followed by afternoon tea.

All welcome - no charge.

Tom will explore the idea that everyone has something important to contribute to our health and social care, and that lived experience matters. He asks how we achieve a true partnership between expert and lay person.

Tom is Professor of Disability Research at the University of East Anglia. For the last 30 years, he has been thinking and researching about disability. His books include Disability Rights and Wrongs, and Disability – the Basics. He broadcasts regularly on BBC Radio 4, and is a Quaker.

This Quaker Meeting House is one of the oldest in the country - built in 1675 - and a very special place.

Directions: Adderbury Quaker Meeting House, Horn Hill Rd, West Adderbury, OX17 3EW.

Bus: S4 - there are just a few Sunday buses between Oxford and Banbury.

On foot: if you are interested in walking from Banbury – get in touch for details.

For further information please phone Maria 01869 347179 (evenings).